Daley, South SIC absolved of charges

by Doug White

Last spring, senior Colleen Daley was working at the South Campus Student Information Center in the McGauvran Building. When she came on duty at four o'clock on the afternoon of May 2, she noticed that sixty tickets to the senior cruise— sold through the S.I.C.— were apparently missing from the inventory of unsold tickets. She reported the discrepancy to Christine Croser (at the time, Christine Allegrone), Assistant Director of Student Activities and Commuter Services, who then notified Dean Duggan at University Life. The next day all records of the ticket sales were taken from the South Campus S.I.C. and further selling of tickets was suspended. From that point, cruise tickets were only available from the North Campus S.I.C..

On May 7, a meeting was held to discuss the theft; it was attended by Brian Flynn, then Director of the South Campus S.I.C.; his assistant Geoff Pahl; Daley; Mary Connelly, Director of Student Activities and Commuter Services; Croser; Jay Teague, President of the Class of 1991; and Officer Thomas Sheehan of the ULowell police force.

Daley says that at that meeting, she felt she was being indirectly accused of the crime by Connelly, but in a phone interview, Connelly denied that Daley was ever a suspect. Connelly did, however, recognize how Daley might have misinterpreted some questions that were asked.

At the meeting Teague finalized the decision that cruise tickets would no longer be sold from South S.I.C. and after the meeting the official police report of the event was filed by Officer Sheehan.

There was no further action taken until the day of the cruise itself. On that day, May 29, Brian Flynn and Paula Haines, a former Assistant Director of the S.I.C., went to the pier to check the ticket numbers of every person who boarded the cruise ship. Every allegedly stolen ticket turned up, and the people holding these tickets were detained to be questioned before the cruise embarked.

When asked to describe the person from whom they had purchased the cruise tickets, many of the detainees offered a description of Daley, who had already boarded the ship. Joyce Tremblay, Treasurer for the class of 1991, fetched Daley from the ship and Detective George Theokas of the ULowell police force proceeded to question her.

Barnes' body found

by Charles Purwin

The body of Marc Barnes was found inside his Camaro on May 28, 1991 submerged in the Merrimack River, seven months after he disappeared from his dorm room in Fox Hall. The vehicle was found upside down in the river across from Durgin Hall alongside two other abandoned vehicles.

A first year Environmental Science major living in Fox hall, Barnes was a member of the ULowell baseball team. Police have concluded that Barnes drove his car into the river purposely, possibly out of depression brought on by the fear that a low score on a geology exam would keep him from playing.

On November 6, the day of his disappearance, Marc Perrone—Barnes' roommate— noticed that Barnes was very depressed and notified the Resident Advisor on duty, Michelle Lapierre. By the time Perrone and Lapierre got back to the room, however, Barnes had driven away in his Camaro.

That night University Police conducted an extensive search of the University grounds, and on Friday Nov 9 ULowell Police conducted a search of

SGA meetings heat up over the summer

by Ellen Barre

The arrival of the University of Massachusetts system to Lowell caused the Student Government Association to hold two marathon long, emergency meetings over the summer. The meetings were held in late June to discuss two proposals. The first from a group called Student/Citizen Education Research and Advocacy Group, which is more easily referred to as the SCERA Group. The second proposal was from a group called the U-Lowell Alumni Group.

SCERA is the brainstorm of three students from the University of Massachusetts -Amherst. Eric Nakajima, Ted Chambers, and Jennifer Wood came to ULowell's SGA to request funds to start SCERA which will research issues important to higher education, teach effective grassroots campaigning to students and facilitate communication and cooperation between the five campuses of the new UMass system.

SCERA originally went to the SGA's Executive Board with a request of $25,000 for equipment and salaries necessary to start the group. The executive board called together the rest of the Senate on June 24th to gain full approval. After listening to SCERA's proposal a motion was made by Mike Choquette, SGA secretary, to support SCERA in principle. This motion passed along with a motion stating that the Executive Board should provide no funding to SCERA without Senate approval. Several senators expressed opinion that $25,000 was a lot of money just to give away. With that idea, Senators Brett Cashman and Gerard Morales made a motion which stated "to withhold all funding to the SCERA Group until they present a line-item summer budget and a defined administrative structure." This motion passed.

SGA reconvened on Monday July 1st with the surprise arrival of a group called the U-Lowell Alumni Group also pre-sending a proposal.

The Alumni Group presented a $15,000 budget to start an organization to help research and lobby during the FY'93 budget process to gain more money for ULowell especially at the federal level. The group consisted of two political science graduates from Lowell, Paul Geary and Michael Armini. Their proposal stated their goals which included "establishing dialogue with the Governor's office and key legislators...writing a detailed guidebook for the SGA which will help familiarize students with legislature and funding processes...pursue the creation of similar research and lobbying groups on the other state campuses."

The SCERA Group was once again present. This time with more detailed about their group and an alternate budget plan for only $9,000.

Games galore

by Charles Purwin

Rest assured that games on the Woods Cluster will NOT disappear this semester. Students will still be able to play their favorite games.

The hours are 11pm to 9am Monday through Friday, and 24 hours on Saturdays and Sundays. During Winter and Summer vacations, the games will be available 24 hours a day.

For those who do not know how to access the games on woods, the procedure is simple. Either use the terminals on the third floor of Lyndon library or the terminals in the Olsen building.

Procedure is as follows:

Local > c woods
VAX/VMS V5.>4 Academic Computing Center
Username: Games
Real Username: <insert your username here>

After this, you will be presented with a menu of games that may be run on the woods cluster. Some of these games require you to submit a name and password to the individual who runs that particular game. Generally, it takes a few days for them to process your information and then you are on to heaps 'o fun. Good Luck!

Change requested in crime reporting

(CPS) - Students may be able to get more detailed information about crime on their campuses if Congress amends a federal privacy-protection law many colleges have been citing to withhold security reports.

The U.S. Department of Education, which oversees most federal college programs, asked July 11 that the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), a 1974 law known as the Buckley Amendment, be changed to allow campuses to release crime reports to the public.

Most state open-records laws require the release of reports by campus officers with the power to make arrests, but most colleges have refused to release the reports, citing the Education Department's interpretation of the Buckley Amendment.

As the law is written, the department says, it's illegal to release campus crime reports that include the names of students arrested by campus security officers.

The law, Education Secretary Lamar Alexander said in a statement, "has made it difficult, sometimes impossible, for a college to report campus crime. That makes no sense. The federal government shouldn't keep colleges from making campus crime information available to students and their families. I don't think Congress ever expected that."

Earlier, U.S. Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Colo., introduced an amendment to a crime-prevention bill that would allow colleges to release the crime reports. The amendment was approved by the Senate, and the bill was approved by the Senate July 11.

Observers said it was unlikely anything would happen before most students return to campus.

"We need to get something done before school starts," maintained Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center in Washington, D.C.

"Too many colleges are withholding crime reports unfairly."

While no one at the Education Department would offer any reason for the change of heart, Goodman, for one, figures it was a move to save face.

"They were so politically damaged by the position," said Goodman. "Now they act as if the proposal takes them off the hook."

For now, student journalists are finding it nearly impossible to report on the safety of their campuses.

"It really is a big pain," said Lyn Schrotberger, editor of the Collegian, the student paper at Colorado State University. Up until last spring, Schrotberger had no problem getting crime reports from campus security.

But the Collegian happened to be one of 17 schools cited during a recent hearing between Traci Bauer, former editor of the student paper at Southwest Missouri State University, and campus officials.

During testimony on behalf of the paper, Goodman released the names of 17 schools that had been giving crime reports to student papers on a regular basis for at least two years. Federal District Judge Russell Clark ruled that Southwest Missouri State University must release crime reports to the student newspaper, but he decision applied only to that case, and the judge didn't order the Education Department to change its policy.

Instead, the Education Department wrote to the 17 schools warning them to stop releasing the names of students in crime reports to Schrotberger even though state law requires it.

"We had to weigh each case separately and make students sign a waiver to release any information," said Donn Hopkins, chief of CSU university police.

Arizona State University student journalists encountered the same problem. "Once we received the letter we stopped giving out the reports," said Nancy Tribbensee, associate general counsel. Arizona State officials considered going to court to get permission to resume making the security reports public, but decided to wait for Congress to come through with new legislation, she said.

Physical Education requirement dropped

by Patti Simone

Good news for those of us who are lazy, incoming freshman or, those who haven't taken gym classes yet. According to Claire Chamberlain, the former Director of Athletics, gym courses are no longer a requirement at the University of Massachusetts • Lowell. Chamberlain said the Department of Athletics has been dissolved. She stated that there are no longer credited courses available to students. However, there are non-credited classes offered by the Recreational Sports Center.

According to the former director, the departmental staff have been dispersed within the university, and none of the athletic faculty has been laid off.

When asked how she felt about the elimination of the Physical Educational Department Chamberlain replied, "I'm very saddened that it has been eliminated. My concern lies with the students who otherwise are physically inactive. When they are forced to take the gym courses, they learn that being active isn't that hard. However those that are active will find other means to keep them that way." Though she is sad about the dissolved department she is excited about her new position as Coordinator of Exercise Physiology.

the Merrimack River and the city of Lowell within a one mile radius of the university. Over the weekend the ULowell Police and scores of volunteers searched the entire city of Lowell for Barnes and his car. No trace of Barnes was found. Chief Rowe of the University Police said the ULowell Police were checking on leads into the disappearance as late as four days before the body was found.

The following spring, the water levels of the Merrimack River were lowered to work on a dam, and several cars were discovered in the river at that time. ULowell Police Officer Raymond Smith recognized the license plate number on Barnes' chocolate-brown Camaro and had the tow truck operator stop removing the car.

The car's ignition was in the "on" position, a fact which police believe indicates that the car was driven into the river. There was no evidence of foul play. The badly decomposed body was found under the dashboard and brought to Tewksbury Hospital for an autopsy.

was more akin to an interrogation and several witnesses corroborate this account.

"He treated me in a forceful and intimidating fashion," recalls Daley. One witness claims he saw Theokas warn her to get a lawyer, an occurrence Daley verifies, and Daley was brought to a state of tears by the continued treatment.

A former Connector staff member, present throughout the episode, says that Theokas told her he didn't want to see it written about in the school paper.

When asked if she remembered the event, Connelly, who was also at the pier, said that Theokas maintained a professional conduct and remained calm throughout the episode. Theokas himself was unavailable for comment.

Eventually all of the detained students, including Daley, were allowed to board the ship and the cruise got underway. At the end of the evening, police were allegedly considering legal action against Daley.

The next morning Daley called Connelly and requested permission to check the records for the stolen tickets—as each ticket was sold it should have been recorded into a reconciliation book—to be sure they hadn't been sold. Connelly insisted the books had been checked by herself, Croser, and Teague, but that Daley was welcome to check them again.

Flynn went to Connelly's office the same morning to further discuss the incident and while there recognized some of the ticket numbers in the record book. Upon closer examination, he discovered that every ticket that had been reported stolen had actually been sold in a legitimate fashion to students and recorded properly in the reconciliation book. There had been no theft at all.

Flynn, who attests that he had never seen the records before that morning, called Daley at her home immediately to tell her the news.

"I was furious," Daley remembers.

In early May, Flynn says he spoke to Connelly and asked her if the reconciliation book had been checked and all the remaining tickets counted to verify that the "missing" tickets were in fact missing. Connelly is quoted by Flynn as saying, "Brian, we checked everything." In a conversation with Teague, Flynn says he was told the same thing.

"If so many people had already checked the books, why wasn't it discovered earlier that there had been no theft?" Flynn asked in an interview. His assessment is that the books had never been checked before he went through them on the morning of May 30, the day after the cruise and nearly a month after the missing tickets had been reported to the Student Activities and Commuter Affairs.

"I can't understand how I could have been told that the reconciliation book had been looked at when no one had done so," Flynn said. "In hindsight, I feel I was at fault for not taking the initiative in checking the book myself."

Flynn attributes the whole debacle as the willingness by the administration to believe the S.I.C. staff was at fault and to not look any further for answers. He is relieved that the reputation of the center and its staff has been vindicated.

Daley, though glad the incident is behind her, she is still somewhat bitter. Connelly did apologize personally to Daley for the mistake, but Daley says, "What I really wanted was an apology in front of my peers. There were sixty students at the pier the night of the cruise who believed I might have done it."

When asked to comment, Connelly apologized again, saying the ordeal was "an unfortunate incident. A mistake was made and there was no intent of a slight against the people working at the South Campus Student Information Center."

Both groups presented their proposals. Discussion and questions ensued for a long time between senators and the two groups. Senator Sue Sullivan said "It's a bad move to go with either group since we have no idea what the students want." Senator Bret Cashman reminded her "Our obligation as senators is to vote for the students best interest."

Henry Lewis, SGA Vice President, stated "This is something that we need ... SCERA is a coordination of the five campuses but the Alumni proposal hinges only on the federal aspect." SGA President Keith Neal agreed with Lewis that we need to unite the campuses but also said "As long as people are willing to put in the time, SGA can do it." Former Student Trustee Pat Demers disagreed with that idea because our SGA must worry about Lowell and once classes start, no senator will have enough time. Demers along with new Student Trustee Tom Winston presented the idea of combining the groups therefore doubling their resources and ability.

A motion was finally made by Brett Cashman stating "To support the SCERA Group along the lines of their second budget proposal." Vice President Lewis and Senator John O'Donnell added a friendly amendment which stated "To include the two members of the Alumni Group in the SCERA organization, along with $5,000 in additional salaries." This entire motion passed with a vote of 14-1-1.

Both SCERA and the Alumni group agreed to the motion to work together. The meeting adjourned after eleven o'clock with plans for anyone interested to meet the next week to begin working out the details.

Court ruling jams procedures for photocopied materials

(CPS) - Students likely will be paying more this year as the result of a federal court ruling that requires commercial copy centers to get permission to photocopy course materials.

It's all because of a U.S. District Court's ruling last March against Kinko's Graphics Corp., which owns about 300 copy shops nationwide, most of them near campuses. Judge Constance Baker-Motley ruled that the chain's popular "professor publishing" program broke copyright laws.

Under the program, professors could create special texts for their classes by picking and choosing excerpts from books, newspaper and magazine articles and other materials, and then have Kinko's reproduce and bind them together for the professors students.

Kinko's had argued that its photocopying constituted "fair use" under federal copyright laws because it was educational in nature, but the judge rejected that claim.

The ruling applies not just to Kinko's but to any other copy shop that produces course packets. It means they all must get publishers' permission for everything they photocopy, adding "time and cost to the educational process," said Adrianna Foss, spokeswoman for the Ventura, Calif., print company.

The class packets are costing more this year because publishers are finally getting paid royalties for their material. And getting permission to reproduce a copyrighted material takes time.

"It can take days and even weeks for publishers to get back to us," Foss said.

"Professors are just now bringing us the materials."

"It's really starting to snowball," agreed Scott Bullard of the National Association of College Stores (NACS). The Ohio-based association, which represents bookstores at campuses around the country, established as a pilot project in May a service to handle copyright requests for about 30 of its members. It plans to extend the service in October to all of its members.

This is how it works: A professor brings a list of the needed materials for a certain class to the campus bookstore, which in turn, forwards the list to the NACS to secure copyright permission. "We're averaging under 10 days to get all the permissions for a certain class," Bullard said. While it's a "terrific turnaround," Bullard says it doesn't match what many copy shops did last school year, when, in many instances, course materials could be ready overnight because the shops didn't bother to get permission from publishers.

"Professors really have to understand that the law and circumstances have changed," Bullard said. "They need to plan ahead to get enough time to clear permissions legally."

"If we get a request two days before classes start for materials there's going to be a delay," said William Simpson, head of the University of Connecticut's bookstore.

The full effects of the ruling - availability of copied materials and how much more the materials will cost - won't be known until students return to classes this fall. Some observers say the added hassle could lead some professors to give textbooks another try.

"It may be that some faculty will decide that ordering full textbooks makes more sense," said Jim Lichtenberg, communications consultant for the Association of American Publishers, A New York-based group that represented eight textbook publishers in the case against Kinko's.

"It could temporarily slow down the move toward customized texts," Simpson agreed. But publishers, bookstores and associations are gearing up to handle copyright permissions electronically by computer, meaning professors could get the OK to reproduce material almost immediately, Simpson said.

Arts & Entertainment

Join the fun! Write for Arts and Entertainment

by Rayanne Drouin
A&E Editor

"What's the most exciting page on the Connector I can write for?" you ask.

Well let me tell you a little secret; If you like movies, music, plays and concerts, and you'd like to get into performances for free, your best bet is to try your hand at writing for the Arts and Entertainment pages.

"Freebies?" you ask.

Of course we have freebies. Okay, so some of the CDs we get aren't always in the top ten, but variety is the spice of life, right? We also get special press-night passes to plays at the Merrimack Repertory theatre and some theatres in the Greater Boston area.

"But I'm only a freshman and I'm not sure if I can write well enough," you say.

Hey look, I'm the editor and I don't bite (that hard). All we do is go through your story together. We fix up the grammar and whatever you feel you might want to change. We work on it together. It's painless and you get your own by-line.

Of course you're not forced to write a play or music review; feel free to check out the movie of your choice. We get press kits filled with all the movie info you'll need to write an amazing review.

If you're an aspiring English major, this is your chance to get published and hang out with the coolest English majors on campus.

"Okay, I want to be the Joyce Kilhewick of the Connector," you say.

Great. All you have to do is mosey on down to Fox 426 any Monday night during the semester. Our meetings are at 6:00pm and to top it off you get free pizza out of the deal.

Remember to ask for Rayanne when you come by. I'll be the one sitting beneath the Madonna poster with the confused look on my face.

Check out UMass at Lowell's Center for Performing and Visual Arts

The University of Massachusetts at Lowell has a thriving performing arts center. In fact, UML's Center for the Performing Arts (South Campus) has a 25 event performing arts series that is widely recognized as one of the best in the greater Boston area. The Center presents an exciting array of performances with nationally and internationally known artists in theatre, music, dance and jazz and you don't have to go to Boston to see them!

Students can see these events at a fraction of the regular cost--or even for free! Student tickets are half price if bought in advance but $2 Student Rush Tickets can be purchased (with student I.D.) at the box office on the night of the performance for any seats available up to one half an hour before curtain.

Students can also volunteer to usher at events. As well as seeing the performance for free, ushers get a backstage view of the event and invitations to special meet-the-artist receptions,

When he goes undercover to catch a gang of daring bank robbers, FBI agent Johnny Utah (Keanu Reeves, left) meets Bodhi (Patrick Swayze, right), a dangerous adventurer who draws him into his own pursuit of the ultimate thrill, in Largo Entertainment's action-thriller "POINT BREAK" now showing in Lawrence's Showcase Cinemas and Chelmsford's Rte. Three Cinema.

Gallery 410 features Robert Emmett Owen

Robert Emmett Owen (1878-1957), an American Impressionist painter, was born in North Adams, Massachusetts and died in New Rochelle, New York.

From his notes we know that he studied painting and drawing at the Eric Pape School of Art in Boston, and later went on to the Art Student's League, the Chase School and the National Academy of Design.

Owen travelled constantly to New York but enjoyed painting scenes from New England most of all. His paintings express the character of New England -- his favorite scenes out of all his portrayals--in a way that is missing in the works of many of his more revered predecessors and contemporaries, such as Metcalf, Weir and Hassam.

The exhibition will be displayed at Gallery 410, University of Massachusetts at Lowell, from September 16 through October 11. The gallery hours are Tuesday through Thursday 12:00-4:00pm. For further information contact The Art Department (508) 934-4120.

Other places where Owen's work has been exhibited include the National Academy of Design (New York City, NY), Anderson Galleries (New York City, NY), Corcoran Gallery (Washington DC), Chicago Art Institute (Chicago, IL), Dartmouth College (Hanover, NH), Mount Holyoke College (South Hadley, MA), and Ainslee Gallery (New York City, NY).

We're already working on:

*concerts *comedy nights *Family Day
*Homecoming *University Week
*Spring Carnival

The first meeting will be held Monday September 9th in FoxHall 301 at 7:00 pm.

It's a pizza meeting,
so bring your appetite and ideas!
Hope to see you there!!

"Let's get a bite to eat!"

Whether you're a resident or a commuter, it's worth your time to check out some of the restaurants on University Ave. and around campus...

Johnny's

A clean friendly place where you can get a good breakfast, lunch or supper--along with a cold pitcher of beer. The prices are reasonable, the food is tasty and the pizza beats Domino's by a mile!

Astros

The place looks like a dive from the outside, and your expectations are fulfilled as soon as you walk through the door. The food isn't that terrific, but it fills an empty stomach. The attraction to Astros is their infamous pitchers of beer; try one between classes or after class on a Friday afternoon.

Lena's

The hours are very short, but you have to try a teriyaki steak sub before you graduate--they're great!

ARA

It's hard to avoid if you're a resident, but basically the cafe food is greasy, fatty and tasteless.

Don't forget, N. Campus has a Pizza Hut right in the commuter lounge, and there are plenty of places like Berardi's and Domino's that deliver to your door!

Moiseyev returns to the Wang Center

The 150-member Moiseyev Dance Company, the Soviet Union's most popular cultural export, makes a four day return engagement to the Wang Center for the Performing Arts. Led by its founder and artistic director Igor Moiseyev, the Moiseyev Dance Company is perhaps the greatest of all folk dance companies. They will appear with full orchestra in a program of celebrated Soviet folk dances and highly skilled acrobatic performances that have won international for over 55 years.

The Moiseyev performance schedule is: Thursday and Friday, September 19&20, 8pm; Saturday, September 21 at 2 & 8pm; Sunday, September 22 at 3pm.

The program includes: THE ROAD TO DANCE, KALMUK DANCE, DANCE OF THE BUFFOONS, TARTAR DANCE, ZHOK, OLD CITY QUADRILLE, THE PARTISANS, MASKS, PLATTER DANCE, TWO BOYS IN A FIGHT, GREEK SUITE and GOPAK. (Program is subject to change)

Ticket prices run from $25 to $40 and will be available beginning Tuesday, September 3 at the Wang Center box-office, 270 Tremont St., Boston MA 02116, and by calling Ticketmaster at 617-931-2000. For group sales only, call 617-482-2595, ext. 13.

The Moiseyev Dance Company is the first presentation of the 1991-92 Dance Subscription Series presented by The Bank of Boston Celebrity Series and WBZ-TV.

Clubs

Looking to meet some new friends? Join the Art History Club. Visiting museums in the New England area, seeing film strips and lectures are just a few of the events planned for this semester. If you're interested in joining us and having fun, call the Art History Department. We're waiting for your call!!

UMass-Lowell Marching Band

Ambassador for the University

The University of Massachusetts-Lowell Marching Band forms an integral part of the musical and athletic aspects of campus life, drawing members from virtually every department in the university. Under the direction of Dan Lutz, the Marching Chiefs perform at competitions, parades and football half-time shows.

Each year new musical selections are drawn from the classics, jazz, rock and popular idioms, with original drills from the band. The Color Guard section, also open to all students in the university, completes the visual presentation of the band's program.

If you are interested in joining the Marching Band, our first rehearsal is Wednesday September 4, 1991 at 5:30 p.m. in Durgin Concert Hall. There are openings in all areas: brass, woodwind, percussion and color guard. If you are interested but cannot attend this rehearsal, please see the Director in Durgin Hall Rm. 321 before Friday September 13! Make new friends, travel and earn university credit! Become a part of "The Class of New England!"

A commuter welcome

The Commuter Association wishes to welcome the new and returning students to the University of Mass at Lowell. As commuters, we represent about 80% of the campus population. We feel it is necessary to provide resource information and services to the commuter students. The Commuter Association also provides a sense of unity to the students who do not live in the residence halls.

Since the organization started two years ago, we have participated in the following events: attended a national conference, operated concession stands at major concerts on campus, participated in spring carnival, promoted alcohol awareness week and represented the commuter students on several committees on campus.

We are here to represent you, the commuter students. We are looking forward to meeting you, so that the commuters can voice their opinions concerning issues that affect you. We invite you to attend our first meeting of the semester on September 10th at 6:00 p.m. in our office in McGauvran 340. Feel free to stop by at any time during the semester. You need not be a member to ask for help.

Serial killings become focus for campus safety

(CPS) - The 34th Street graffiti wall is an ever-changing kaleidoscope of colors and words -- permanence is unheard of. At least, it was.

Two weeks after a killer murdered five College students, an anonymous artist painted the victims' manes on a section of the wall -- white letters on black. A red heart was drawn underneath. "We love you" and "We miss you," spray-painted in yellow, has been the only addition to the memorial since then.

The tribute to Sonja Larson, 18; Christina Powell, 17; Christa Hoyt, 18; Tracey Inez Paules, 23; and Manuel Taboada, 23, remains today. Four were University of Florida students. One attended Santa Fe Community College.

On Aug. 26, 1990, police in Gainesville found the first body in a string of mutilation murders that stunned the nation. The University of Florida and the Gainesville community are prepared to remember the victims and to promote increased campus safety at home and across the nation.

"Most police experts tell us the biggest problem is getting students to take the precautions that most of us practice routinely," said Dr. John V. Lombardi, President of the University of Florida.

To help remind students, Lombardi sent a letter to the 34,000 who attend the university. It tells them of additional security measures on campus and asks them to call home often.

The parents aren't the only ones worrying. Last year students flocked to stores to buy locks, guns and mace. Fear was so widespread that thousands of students went home for a week. Some didn't return.

Many still suffer anxiety caused by the murders.

JoAnne Kaul is a senior who lived with her boyfriend in an apartment near where the first two bodies were found last year.

"At first we got really scared. We freaked," she said.

Now, Kaul said she has three locks on her apartment's front door and three locks on her bedroom door. She adds, "I will never live in a bottom floor apartment."

Kelly Burlingame, a junior transfer student, is moving into the Williamsburg Apartments where Powell and Larson were killed.

"I'm starting to be more cautious now," said

Burlingame, who will live with her sister and her sister's boyfriend. "I'm just going to try to make sure that my doors are always locked and that I'm not alone."

People living in the off-campus apartment complexes where students were murdered aren't the only ones taking precautions.

"Last year we were really scared," said Jon Barash, a member of Pi Lambda Phi fraternity. "We had 10 people staying in our apartment and one of the guys parked his Harley Davidson in front of our apartment door. We thought people might think a biker lived there or something and would leave us alone."

Tensions eased after the arrests of two suspects in the slaying.

Then, two female University of Florida students were found strangled to death in their off-campus apartment in June. A carpet cleaner has been charged in connection with their death.

"It's a complete...Boom! feeling," said Lt. Sadie Darnell, Gainesville police spokeswoman. "There are no guarantees that we're not going to have more student victims, but we can make a concerted effort. There will be some people who will say, 'That happened in Gainesville, Florida. It won't happen here.' That's ignorant," she said. "All you can do is try to learn from it."

Since the Florida killings, a 55-member special police task force staffed by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, the Alachua County sheriff's department, Gainesville police and the FBI has been working to solve the killings.

Police say their main suspect is Danny Harold Rollings, 37, of Shreveport, La. Rollings is in jail following an indictment for robbing a supermarket in nearby Ocala, Fla. That robbery placed him in the area at the time of the killings. State attorney Len Register plans to present his evidence to a grand jury in late September or early October. Register is seeking indictments against both men.

The anniversary of the murders coincides with the first day of classes. The week before, white ribbons were distributed by Gainesville police and tied to cars, trees and telephone poles.

At noon on the 26th, the city's churches and the city and university bell towers were scheduled to chime in remembrance.

"The anniversary of this tragedy is almost harder for me," Darnell said. "This time I've had the privilege of meeting the families and seeing what these five people were like before. They had such bright futures...The families are grateful that this community is not forgetting their children."

Off-Campus Students And Their Guests

The University is strongly committed to the promotion of goodwill in the larger community and expects students to display similar sentiments in their daily behavior.

Because of past neighborhood problems we want you to know that if you break federal, state or local laws by selling alcoholic beverages or serving underage students or by other disruptive behavior, excessive noise or public drinking, such behavior will constitute serious concern to the University and students will be subject to a hearing through a University Judicial Process. Please be considerate of your neighbors.

All inquiries concerning this matter should be directed to the Office of University Life, Cumnock Hall, North Campus.

On Campus Housing Still Available

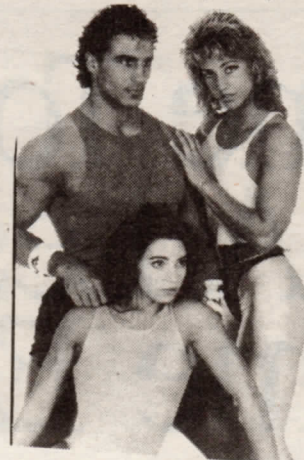

A student's residence at the University of Massachusetts at Lowell is more than a place to sleep and study. The University's residence halls are an integral part of the educational program; the halls are homes where students are able to grow by sharing their thoughts, concerns, and interests with fellow students outside the classroom. The Residence Life Program supports and enhances the education milieu by structuring an environment that optimizes the opportunity for individual growth and learning. Residential Life is a participatory experience by which students are encouraged to take an active role in the leadership and development of their community. If you are interested in living in on-campus housing or would like more information please come to the Office of Residence Life in Cumnock Hall. The cost of on-campus housing is $1186 per semester; meal plans range from $633-788.

School Volunteers For Lowell

Now, more than ever, you can make a difference! If you can give four hours or more per week, School Volunteers for Lowell can place you in a Lowell classroom where you can help a young person learn and grow.

This September we will have openings in elementary and middle schools for Classroom Assistants and Tutors in reading, writing, math, and science. Computer lab assistants and library assistants are also needed.

Two special opportunities are available to volunteers: Mentors are matched with at-risk students to encourage them to believe in themselves and stay in school; and Kindermentors work with Lowell's youngest students, offering support and encouragement to children with various linguistic, academic and developmental needs.

If you would like to join a growing number of University of Massachusetts/Lowell students who are making a difference in young people's lives, call Mary Bacigalupo or Barbara Arnold 934-4659 for more information and a School Volunteers for Lowell application.

Support Services Available for Adult Learners

Welcome Adult Learners! The Counseling and Career Development Center has services which can help ease your transition back to school and contribute to a successful semester. Our Drop-In Center for Returning Students is located in Room 335 of the McGauvran Student Center, South Campus. Our bulletin boards contain information which may be of interest to you. Plan to stop by!

Other adult learners who have been at the university for at least a semester volunteer their time to be trained as peer counselors to staff the center. (If you are interested in being an Adult Learner Peer Counselor this semester, please contact Chris Oatis, x4331). The Adult Learner Drop-In Center provides an informal space to network with other adults on campus.

This fall, Chris Oatis,

Coordinator of Adult Learner Services of the Counseling and Career Development Center will be offering the following workshops in Room 335: Life/Career Transitions Workshop: 2 sessions on Thursday, Oct. 10th and Oct. 17th, 11:00 to 12:00. Stress Management Workshop: 1 session on either Monday, Oct. 21st at 12:00 to 1:00 or Thursday, Oct. 24th from 12:00 to 1:00. A Weekly Support Group for Adult Learners will be forming. If you are interested in participating, please contact Chris Oatis x4331, or sign up at the Adult Learner Drop In Center, Room 335 with your available times. A Weekly Women's Group will also be forming this fall. Contact Chris Oatis at x4331 for more information and to sign up.

Best wishes to you in the coming semester!

Juniors and Seniors

Are you looking for a challenging practicum...one which will contribute to your own career development as well as to others at the University of Lowell.

Consider an internship as a Career Development Peer Counselor. We need you to staff the Career Development Resource Center which is located in the Student Union Building on the South Campus.

We are looking for motivated students who are interested in working with people.

You will learn to guide students through the use of DISCOVER II, a computerized career information system, and assist students in researching careers through printed resources.

To find out more, please stop by the Counseling and Career Development Center. McGauvran Student Union, South Campus to speak to Lanett Scott or call 934-4331 to make an appointment for the interview.

Welcome to the University of Massachusetts • Lowell. While the name may have changed, nothing else that is noticeable to students is different, except the fact that we're all paying a little more in tuition and fees this semester. The question that comes to my mind is -- How much more can the students be expected to pay in the future. At the ULowell's Trustees meeting in July, President Hogan announced that because of additional cuts in state funding for this university and decreased enrollment figures, tuition and student fees would have to be raised $795. During the last three years, the university has cut hundreds of class sections, laid-off part-time and full-time faculty and overloaded the existing classes but for some reason, having students pay more money always seems to be the result. We've heard the excuses...to upkeep services, to avoid cutting sections, etc. Both elevators in O'Leary library are now working (in the past one was shut-off to save electricity) but when the library stacks are severely lacking necessary materials for students, what good does it do us? Things are not supposed to be getting better any time in the near future either. What can be done? One thing is to seriously look at the jobs in the high offices of Com-nock Hall and others around campus and ask are all these administrative positions absolutely necessary. Yes, a few co-deans of the different colleges of this university have been demoted but those are merely token cuts of what really could be done. The size of the student body is decreasing, the faculty and staff have fewer in its ranks yet administration seems to be keeping its same size. Thousands of dollars could be saved by just eliminating one of those jobs. This idea is very possible but will it be done? I doubt it. These are the people who are first and foremost out to protect their job. So, I guess students will continue to pay more, sit in larger classes, see fewer new books in the library and have a harder time getting into the classes we need to graduate. With this final thought, I will close this editorial. When Governor Weld came here in July, he claimed that education is one of his priorities, yet he said that in order for it to be a priority, it is not necessary to support education financially at this time. Governor Weld, if education is really one of your priorities, you have a funny way of showing it to the students of this university.

Have a great semester everyone!

Letters to the Editor

One person's thoughts about the ROTC

My senior year of high school I asked myself a question millions of other students had to ask - what do I want to do next? College was the natural and obvious answer, but something was missing. I had my heart set on West Point. Although nominated by my congressman, I was never accepted to the United States Military Academy. This seemed to take the wind out of my sails. I decided to take the next logical option: Army ROTC. This turned out to be the best decision I have made about my future for three good reasons.

The non-military benefits of a military-based education are exceptional. The financial aid and support for school are well worth the time put in. In an era of consistently rising costs and tuition, this has proved extremely helpful. Leadership is the entire basis of an Army commission, yet leadership can be applied in any field, military or civilian. This experience gives me a certain advantage over someone without a military background, once I complete school. What other program teaches me to be a teacher, tells me how to be a speaker, and shows me how to be a better leader? In a world where these traits seem to be lacking so, they are invaluable, inside as well as outside the Army.

The military training available to an Army cadet is much more than I ever expected. This is one of the things that attracted me to West Point. However, the same opportunities are available right here in ROTC. I can do my military training in a normal college atmosphere. Those in the National Guard or Reserves can take advantage of the Simultaneous Membership Program. It allows reservists to remain in the reserves while working to become an officer. For the high-speed cadet, one can go to several of the U.S. Army training Schools throughout the U.S.. The Northern and Mountain Warfare Schools, and both Air Assault and Airborne Schools are all available to those of us who wish to challenge ourselves on a higher level. Field Training Exercises are held each semester at Fort Devens and the Sudbury Training Area, respectively. These FTX's have two aims: to provide meaningful leadership experience to even the 1st and 2nd year cadets, and to allow cadets to partake in challenging and necessary military skills training like obstacle courses and shooting.

Finally and probably most importantly for me, Army ROTC has helped me realize the path I wish to take in the near future. An Army commission brings with it a set of values I already hold-duty, honor, country. The Army's ongoing mission is to train and prepare and improve the men and women who make up the Army. I cannot think of many institutions that have that as their goal. The Army allows me to be the instrument of my nation's will. It lets me be the defender of my country's rights and beliefs. It puts me at the vanguard of her defense and the defense of her interests. And for this I am only too willing, able and ready.

My reasons for joining and my reasons for staying do not differ, only the emphasis on each reason. I agree, Army ROTC is not for everybody. It is for those who want a challenge. It is for those who want an advantage. It is for those who want to reach a goal. It is for those who look ahead, want to get ahead, and want to stay ahead.

Support services available for adult learners

Welcome Adult Learners! The Counseling and Career Development Center has services which can help ease your transition back to school and contribute to a successful semester. Our Drop-In Center for Returning Students is located in Room 335 of the McGauvran Student Center, South Campus. Our bulletin boards contain information which may be of interest to you. Plan to stop by!

Other adult learners who have been at the university for at least a semester volunteer their time to be trained as peer counselors to staff the center. (If you are interested in being an Adult Learner Peer Counselor this semester, please contact Chris Oatis, x4331). The Adult Learner Drop-In Center provides an informal space to network with other adults on campus.

This fall, Chris Oatis, Coordinator of Adult Learner Services of the Counseling and Career Development Center will be offering the following workshops in Room 335:

Life/Career Transitions Workshop: 2 sessions on Thursday, Oct. 10th and Oct. 17th, 11:00 to 12:00. Stress Management Workshop: 1 session on either Monday, Oct. 21st at 12:00 to 1:00 or Thursday, Oct. 24th from 12:00 to 1:00. A Weekly Support Group for Adult Learners will be forming. If you are interested in participating, please contact Chris Oatis x4331, or sign up at the Adult Learner Drop In Center, Room 335 with your available times. A Weekly Women's Group will

There is still ample spacetime to enrol in the 2-semester, 30 credit undergraduate elective course 95.383: SPACETIME PHYSICS 1 (or its graduate equivalent, 95.727: Selected Topics in Theoretical Physics), and to delve into the mysteries of (special and general) relativity, gravity and cosmology. The Department of Physics and Applied Physics is once again offering this opportunity under the direction of Dr. Eric Sheldon in the 1991 Fall Semester, and you are encouraged to enrol in either Section 201 (Tues., 10:30-12:20 & Thurs., 4:30-5:20) or Section 202 (times to be arranged to suit participants' schedules).

Instead of being run as an E-mail conference course as in the immediate past, it is intended to revert to in-house lectures to a small, select group of enthusiasts to whom more individual attention can be devoted. It will be enhanced, as before, with topical

(As for the lectures, some say they are beyond price, and others say that they are priceless—take your pick!).

The first semester will cover special relativity and the rudiments of general relativity, while the second semester (Spring 1992, 95.384/728) will develop general relativity in full detail, explore gravity and other related phenomena, rounded off with a flourish by examining cosmology and the evolution of our Universe. The course doesn't pretend to be easy, but it does promise to be exciting, stimulating, exhilarating—just ask any of the previous "spaceshots" who took part. If you are uncertain as to whether or not to register for credit, why not "sample" it for "audit"? Dr. Sheldon (Physics, OH-137, ext. 3779) will be glad to provide further information and/or answer your queries (if he can!).

The Catholic Center will host an annual Opening Year Cook-out on Wednesday afternoon, September 11th at the Center. Mass will be celebrated at 4:30 p.m. and the Cook-out will follow beginning at 5:30 p.m. Hamburgers, hot dogs, cold drinks, new friends and good conversation are all on the menu. The Cook-out is open to all. We simply ask that you RSVP (454-0151) so that we can have enough supplies on hand. The purpose of the Cook-out is to celebrate the opening of school, to welcome back returning students and to offer a special welcome to those who are attending our University for the first time. Please plan to join us for the Cook-out, or the opening year mass or both.

Are you looking for some fun and fellowship?

If you are a Christian, and if you are searching for a club that will suit your spiritual needs, then Campus Ambassadors Christian Fellowship is the place to be. We would like to invite you to join us for our first meeting of the year on Wednesday, September 11th, from 7-9 p.m., in Room 501 of Fox Hall. Of course, at Campus Ambassadors, we don't preach fiery sermons from a pulpit. At our meetings, we discuss issues which are important to the growing needs of Christians, such as the increasing pressures many Christians face in today's society. We also search for biblical solutions to these issues through prayer and the study of His Word. We otherwise sing, fellowship, and in general have a good time. We will meet every Wednesday from 7-9 p.m.

Student Health Service

Welcome back to the University of Massachusetts - Lowell. Due to budget and staff cuts and the increasing number of students receiving their health care on campus the Student Health Service has had to make changes in the delivery of care. Walk-In services are limited and an appointment system has been adopted, the allergy clinic has been discontinued and the women's health clinic has been limited to two days a week (Monday and Thursday). The following information is offered a a reminder of the health service requirements and provides an update on services available here on campus.

Who is Eligible for Service?

All full time undergraduate and graduate students with a completed health form on file at the Student Health Service.

Are there any Health Service Requirements?

Yes. All students, as part of the condition of admission, are required to have on file a complete up-to-date medical history and physical exam form, evidence of a recent Mantoux test, and proof of up-to-date immunizations.

What Immunizations are required?

The college immunization law effective August 1, 1991 states: In order to be registered at an institution of higher learning, every (1) full time undergraduate or graduate student born after 1956 and (2) every full time or part-time undergraduate student in a health science program, regardless of birthdate, who is in contact with patients, must present a physician's certificate that such student has received the following immunizations: (1) at least one dose of mumps or rubella vaccine(s) given at or after 12 months of age; (2) two dose of live measles vaccine given at least one month apart beginning at or after 12 months of age; and (3) a booster dose of tetanus within the past ten years. The month and date of the above immunizations must be given. The required physician certification may be waived if: (1) the student meets the standards for medical or religious exemption set forth by

M.G.L. c.76, s.15C; (2) the student provides a copy of an immunization records from a school in the Commonwealth indicating receipt of the required immunization; or (3) in the case of measles, mumps or rubella, the student presents laboratory evidence of immunity.

The Public Health department monitors college students' immunization records for compliance with this law.

What is the Mantoux Test?
The Mantoux test is a screening test for tuberculosis. This test is not an immunization, rather it is a test to determine if the individual has been exposed to tuberculosis. (Please note: the Time is not accepted.)

What is the result of failing to file required health forms?

Failure to file health forms can interrupt your care and education. The college immunization law requires that students file their immunization records with the school or be suspended until the requirement is completed. Failure to file health records will also make a student ineligible to use the Health Services except for first aid.

Where is the Student Health Service Located?

The Student Health Service is located in the white house on 30 Standish Street, behind the North campus library.

What are the Hours of Service?

The Health Service is open Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Students must have an appointment to see the physician or nurse practitioner. Walk-In service is available with the RN from 8-11:30 and 1-4:15; she will determine is an appointment with the nurse practitioner or physician is necessary. *(there is no Walk-In service on Wednesday afternoons.)

Who provides Health Care?

The Health Service is staffed full time by the director, Dr. Peterson, a nurse practitioner; Mrs. Leary, a registered nurse; and Mrs. Quattrocchi, a nurse practitioner available 28 hours per week. A physician is available, on a limited bases, by appointment only.

Where do students go for medical care when the Health Service is closed?

If you do not have an emergency but are ill, you must decide if the condition can wait until the Health Service opens or go to one of the Walk-In clinics located in Lowell. Due to our small staff size an appointment system will be strictly enforced; if an appointment can not be scheduled within a suitable time frame you may be referred to a local Walk-In clinic or to your private physician. Emergency treatment is available at: St. Joseph's Hospital, 220 Pawtucket St. (453-1761); St. John's Hospital, Hospital Drive (458-1411); Lowell General Hospital, 295 Varnum Ave. (937-6000). In an emergency call Security at 2911. Be prepared to give your name, location, telephone number, nature of injury or illness, and number of people involved. EMTs will be directed to your aid.

What Type of Services are provided at the Student Health Service?

Services include: Blood pressure monitoring, Mantoux TB testing, Treatment of episodic illnesses such as colds, sore throats, mono, sprains vaginitis, urinary tract infections etc., Women's health clinic (by appointment only), Laboratory work (some are done on site, some are sent to an outside lab. An appointment for specimen collection should be made.). (Allergy injections have been discounted due to budget cuts.)

What is the Fee for Care?

There is no Student Health Fee; however, there is a slight fee charged to cover the cost of lab services and medications provided at the Health Services. The student is also financially responsible for all diagnostic tests, prescriptions, or medical services received off campus. Does the Student Health Service make referrals?

Yes, if the Health Service is unable to provide the necessary care, referrals will be made to health providers within the community. In such referrals, the student assumes responsibility for all medical costs incurred.

Does the University offer Health Insurance?

Yes. All students are covered by an accident fee. Health insurance is mandatory, unless waived by providing proof of equal or better coverage. Waive forms are handled by the Business Office.

Fact sheet for victims of sexual assault

Sexual Assault is forced, manipulated or coerced sexual activity. It is a violent crime, using sexual means. When it involves unwanted penetration, it is rape. If you or someone you know has been a victim of sexual assault or rape, the University wants you to know of the variety of services available to assist you, and strongly encourages you to use them as soon as possible.

Counseling Help-Counseling Center 934-4331

It is not unusual to experience feelings of helplessness, frustration, guilt, self-blame, or anger after an assault. It is often helpful to talk with someone who is aware of all the issues involved and can help you deal with the experience. The Counseling Center offers professional counseling services for victims of sexual assault, and can also team you up with a trained peer counselor for your continued support. This service is confidential. Seeking assistance through the Counseling Center will not initiate any other action without your consent. If you use the services of the Counseling Center, you will be encouraged but not required to seek immediate medical attention and report the assault to the University Police. Information on procedures at these facilities will be provided, and you will be accompanied to the hospital or police if you choose. You will also be informed of University policy and judicial procedure and legal procedures that are available to you. This office can also assist in any changes or modifications of your schedule that may be necessary.

Additional Counseling Help

Additional counseling help is available through the Greater Lowell Rape Crisis Service. Trained volunteer counselors are available 24 hours a day. They will also accompany you to a hospital or police facility if you choose. The hotline number for the Rape Crisis Service is 1-800-542-5212.

Medical Help

Health Service (day) 934-4991, Lowell Gen. Hosp. 937-6000, St. Joseph's Hosp. 453-1761, St. John's Hosp. 458-1411 and University E.M.T.'s 934-2911.

The Health service or any local hospital will provide immediate and follow-up medical assistance. An immediate medical examination has two goals: first, to treat the full extent of any injury or physical trauma and to consider the possibility of sexually transmitted diseases or pregnancy, and second, to obtain legally correct evidence in case you should decide to prosecute. Victims of rape are asked not to bathe or douche before having the examination. They are also requested to bring any clothes they were wearing at the time of the assault. Victims will be encouraged, but not required to make a report to the Police, and will be encouraged to use counseling resources and the University judicial process. Pregnancy termination information and services are not available at St. Joseph's or St. John's hospitals. University E.M.T.'s are contacted through University Police.

Police/Legal Help

University Police 934-2911/Lowell Police 937-3200

You are strongly encouraged to use the University Police to report any crime, whether occurring on or off campus. Should another Police Department need to be notified, they will assist you to do this. Investigation of on-campus crimes is the direct responsibility of the University Police Department. The University Police Department is sensitive to and aware of the extent of problems of sexual assault and rape. They recognize also the vulnerability of the college age population and address this concern on many levels. All members of the Police Department have received training in responding to sexual assault and rape. Additionally there are trained Rape Investigators within the Department who are certified by the Massachusetts criminal Justice Training Council. It is important to report these crimes as soon as possible to that a full and appropriate investigation can be conducted. Mass. General Laws require that the report of a crime to a Police Department must be investigated. A delay in investigation could result in loss of fresh evidence and could jeopardize any later prosecution. The results of this investigation will be presented to the District Attorney to be evaluated for possible prosecution. It is unlikely that prosecution will occur without the cooperation of the victim.

If you contact the University Police, you will be informed of your legal rights as a victim and the various procedures available to you. You will also be asked to undergo a medical examination and informed of and encouraged to use the counseling and judicial resources of the University.

Court Help-Victim/Witness Program 458-4440

The Victim/Witness Program is a specialized office with the Office of the Middlesex County District Attorney and is designed to help victims and witnesses of crimes throughout the legal process. Any one can meet with them confidentially to ask questions about a particular assault and how the District Attorney and court might handle it.

Residence Life Help Contact your R.A. or R.D.

The Office of Residence Life, including levels of responsibility within Residence Life (R.D., A.R.D., R.A.), will assist you in obtaining appropriate assistance from any University resource, and will accompany you in this process if you choose. They will also assist in taking care of new housing arrangements or other appropriate changes that you request. If you report first to a Residence Life staff person, you will be encouraged to make a police report, seek medical attention, and use the counseling and judicial resources of the University. If the alleged perpetrator is a resident student, a Residence Life judicial hearing will ensue.

Claim forms are available at the Student Health Service, the Business Office or at Somers Kitchen and Essler Insurance Agency, 25 North St. Salem, MA 01970. Questions about insurance coverage or status of claim forms can be answered by calling the agency at 1-800-325-1066 or the Maksin Management Corp. at 1-800-257-6250. The health service staff does not handle insurance problems or questions.

If you waived the school insurance and belong to an HMO, check to see it will cover lab tests and prescriptions ordered by the Health Service. Most will not, and the student, if unable to go to the HMO for care, must pay out of pocket. Does the Student Health Service provide Medical Excuses?

We believe it is our responsibility to treat and advise students on measures to best care for their health. As adults, it is then the responsibility of the student to make whatever arrangements are necessary with the professor. If, for medical reasons, a student is advised to remain out of classes for a week or more, the University Life Office will be notified. That office will in turn notify the appropriate professors.

For an appointment call 934-4991. The Health Service staff members will do their best to accommodate your schedule and to limit your waiting time. Given the staff/patient ratio there may be times when you may have to wait for an appointment (as is usual with private practices). We ask your patience and understanding and look forward to serving you in the up coming school year.

More students stressed out, survey shows

(CPS) - Significantly larger numbers of college students are seeking counseling for depression, stress, eating disorders and substance abuse at a time when schools are cutting back mental health services, says a University of Florida psychologist.

Eighty-five percent of directors of college counseling centers throughout the nation reported an increase in serious psychological problems among college students in the past 10 years, said James Archer, who has written a new book called "Counseling College Students."

"I'd say it's a significant increase, and it's been steady," said Archer, director of the counseling center at the University of Florida.

The type of disorders treated at the centers ranged from counseling for depression, stress, alcohol and drug addiction to problems stemming from physical, mental and sexual abuse. College students also are susceptible to loneliness, feelings of alienation and pressures to get good grades and jobs.

"It's not as easy as 10 to 15 years ago to get a job with a college degree," he said.

Being away from home, students also may discover for the first time that they have difficulties relating to their peers or professors because they come from abusive families.

Archer said it was difficult to tell whether the disorders are actually increasing or whether students are more willing to seek counseling because such problems are more openly discussed. The result is the same: More students are turning to counseling centers for help.

Unfortunately, most colleges are cutting health services, including counseling, for lack of funding. In tight budget years, "services to students are cut at a greater rate than academic programs. Counseling and mental treatment centers get cut to a greater degree," Archer said.

That was why Archer said he decided to write the counseling book, which focuses on ways that college faculty and staff can help pinpoint troubled students and talk with them or refer the ones with serious problems to professional counselors.

The idea is early detection to prevent despondent students from turning to suicide, alcoholism or drug addiction, Archer said.

Financial Aid Infomation

Stafford Loans (formerly Guaranteed Student Loans)/SLS Loans

Lending institutions mail Stafford and SLS (Supplemental) loan checks directly to the Business Office, located in Room 128, Dugan Hall, South Campus. The checks are made payable to both the university and the student, and therefore require the student's endorsement. The Business Office will notify the student when his/her check arrives from the lending institution. (Check your student mailbox for your notice.) Checks can be negotiated beginning the first day of classes, Tuesday September 3, 1991. Please be advised that students are required by federal law to attend an entrance interview with the Financial Aid Office.

All incoming freshmen and transfer students as well as all first-time borrowers are required to attend an entrance interview before they will be allowed to endorse their loan checks. Interviews will begin on Wednesday, September 11, 1991 and will be held every Wednesday between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. on the hour and half-hour. Sessions will last approximately 20 minutes.

Once the check is endorsed, the loan is applied to your tuition/fee account. Refund checks, due to remaining credit balances, will be issued. Any loan check which remains unsigned by a student, must be returned to the lending institution after 120 days.

PLUS (Parental) Loans

Plus (Parental) Loans are mailed directly from the lending institution to the parent/guardian borrower. It is the students responsibility to make sure his/her university obligations are paid for from the loan.

Refund checks

Students who are eligible for financial assistance, and who have completed the financial aid verification process, including signing and returning their financial aid notification letters, will have their financial aid credited to their student account. Refund checks for credit balances will be issued as soon as possible after the fourth week of classes. Please note, Massachusetts Board of Regents General Scholarship money will to be released as refunds until funds are received from the Treasurer of the Commonwealth.

Adult Children of Alcoholic Support Groups

Adult Children of Alcoholics are people whose lives have been affected by the drinking of a family member or close friend. Even though, you may not have a problem with alcohol, someone else's drinking may interfere with your life in a very serious way...like a mother or father who is always drunk or a boyfriend or a girlfriend who frequently mess up a date by drinking too much.

Adult Children of Alcoholics get together to support each other and to overcome the negative affects that other people's behavior can sometime have on us.

If this describes you then please plan to join in one of the ACoA support groups which will meet this semester: Mondays: 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. in Fox 608A; Thursday: noon to 1 p.m. at South SUB 334. For more information, please contact: Sister Gail at 454-0151.

Internship program leads to student employment

The Center for the Arts, UMass-Lowell, announces the start of an internship program during fall, 1991, in conjunction with Professional Facilities Management, Inc., which will prepare students for work as stage hands in Durgin Hall and Lowell Memorial Auditorium. The program is under the direction of Bill Brackett, Operations Manager for the Center for the Arts and Technical Director for Professional Facilities Management, which operates Lowell Memorial Auditorium.

Students will meet once a week for two hours with Mr. Brackett for instruction and hands-on experience in stage work, including aspects of stage lighting, rigging, sound reinforcement and staging a show. Instructions during the internship will be not-for-credit, will not cost the students any money and will lead, after some experience to employment as a student stage hand (at $7 per hour), for events presented by the Center for the Arts and the Music Department on campus, and by Professional Facilities Management at Lowell Memorial Auditorium. Several students have already been trained in a pilot internship program and we have worked successfully for these organizations.

For information and to sign up for the program, call Bill Brackett at the Center office, room 116, Durgin Hall, UMass-Lowell South Campus.

Once again it is time to ask for the students' help and cooperation in the University's continuing effort to improve relations with the surrounding neighborhoods. The staff of the Office of Student Activities & Commuter Services ask that, as you prepare to take up a new residence or return to an old one, you keep in mind the following: When you rent you enter into not only a legal contract with your landlord but also into a social contract with your neighbors. If you have parties, give thought to your neighbors. Let your neighbors

Slade Garrison

Greetings, all!
Welcome to the Comix page!
Here we usually run two pages worth of student-submitted comix! Really! And it's easy to submit (he says with a smile...)
All ya gotta do is to fill a 4" x 10" or 4" x 14" space with comical-like material! Make sure that it's in black ink 'cause it won't print otherwise!
You can also do fillers sized at 4" x 4". Either drop them off at the Connector (stick them in the ugly yellow manilla-vanilli folder) or send 'em to me, Damon Psarris at box 5982. That's it!
I'll print a more complete guidelines list later on, but that's really all you need to know!
If you have any questions, you can reach me at the aforementioned places.
Happy scribbling!

Fall Sport Preview

The University of Lowell athletics jumps off to an exciting start this fall. The football team (see other story) has only lost 3 games over the past 3 seasons. The Volleyball team finished last season with an amazing 35-6 record. The Women's tennis team completed their season with only one loss (12-1). The track and field team had another fine season. Both the soccer team (6-12) and the field hockey team (6-11-2) are still rebuilding. Also in the fall, look for fall baseball and fall softball.

Each sport is highly competitive in their leagues. The football team competes on the Division III level and some of their opponents include Plymouth State and Bridgewater State. The other sports are Division II and they belong to the New England Collegiate Conference.

The Volleyball team will once again have a great team. Gone from last year are co-captains Chrissy Leonard and Sue Martin. Back to lead the Lady Chiefs will be All-Region all-star Marybeth Fleming (picture on left). Fleming missed the end of last season with an injury but should be fully recovered for the 1991 season. Coach Leonard should have another strong team. Michelle Roy, Jan Andrusaitis, Katie McSwiggin and Lori Hudzik are all back and ready to help Lowell to another excellent season.

With sophomore Joy Higgins at the number 1 seed, the Lady Chiefs should have a fine season of Women's tennis. Graduating from last year's squad will be their undefeated senior captain, Donna Leonard.

The soccer team seems to get better and better each season. This season they should expect a lot from Jim Young, Joe Gilligan and Dave Foley, to name a few.

The field hockey team plays one of the toughest schedules of all ULowell sports. Coach Agrella expects a lot from her young team. Goalie Ruth Benoit played in all 19 games last season and posted a 6-11-2 record with a 2.41 goals against average and 280 saves. Five of last year's top six scorers are back in 1991. Amy Lavina, Miki Bryan, Colleen O'Connell, Melissa Morse and Courtney Foley all return with plenty of experience under their belt.

The track and field team will be lead by David Cremins, John Doherty, Cheryl Dalton, Christine Higgins and Tracey Maher.

Overall, it should be an interesting fall for the Chiefs with many questions to be answered. Can the football team finally go undefeated after three straight one loss seasons? Can the Volleyball team go all the way after losing two of the best players? Will the field hockey team and soccer team become a top team after a few years of rebuilding? These questions and more will be answered during the fall of 1991 at the University of Lowell.

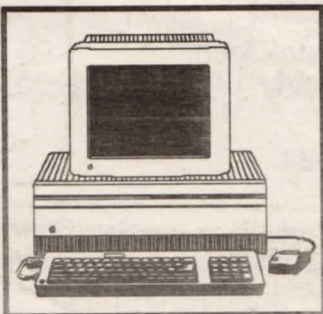

Marybeth Fleming was selected to the New England All-Region team. She is the Chiefs star volleyball player. The Volleyball team should have another great season in 1991.

Sports

1991 Sports Fall outlook

If the University of Massachusetts at Lowell Chiefs excluded their seven-game New England Collegiate Conference schedule last fall, they would have finished the 1990 campaign with a 6-5 mark and their first winning season since 1982. Against their seven league rivals, the Chiefs lost seven games by an aggregate score of 40-3.

It would suffice to say that the Chiefs have made progress the last three seasons against their non-league rivals. It would also be accurate to say that the Chiefs have a ways to go to catch their high-powered rivals in a conference that has produced three of the last four NCAA Division Two champions. Last year, six of the NECC's eight member teams finished with overall records above .500.

Head coach Sean McGowan begins his sixth season at the helm of a team that has not enjoyed "the thrill of victory" in an NECC tilt since his rookie season. His clubs have become more competitive in each of the last three seasons as is evidenced by their improving non-league record (3-5-1, 3-7-7, and 6-5-0), but the Chiefs have been on the wrong end of 31 straight league games.

Could 1991 be the season that the Chiefs accomplish two major goals - to play above .500 overall and win some conference games. McGowan has 11 lettermen returning from last season's club and expects his team will continue the offensive improvement it has shown since 1987's low-water mark of nine goals scored. Among the returning players are four of the top six scorers. The defensive end play must get tighter to reduce the record 66 goals allowed last season.

Along the front line, McGowan will have a solid group of returnees to work into the lineup. Senior John Pion and junior Dave Foley have been at the top of the Chiefs scoring list in each of the last two seasons. Foley led the Chiefs last year with five goals and six assists for 16 points while Pion had 13 points on five goals and three assists. Sophomore Bob McArdle, junior Larry Bourassa, and transfer Doug Coppi will be in the battle with the two veterans for the three starting forward spots.

The Chiefs had some big losses at midfield where four-year players Bob Kitsos and John Roark have graduated. McGowan is counting on junior Jim Young and senior Bruce Lane, along with Steve DiLeo who returns after a two-year absence, to form the core of the midfield. Young had two goals and two assists in the '90 campaign while Lane netted a pair of goals. DiLeo, who has not played since 1988, should give the Chiefs offense a big boost. Sophomore Chris Chausse, who saw action in nine games last season, is also returning.

A big key to McGowan and the Chiefs accomplishing their two major goals this fall will be the ability to put together a solid "back four". The veteran coach has given some thought to moving senior captain Joe Gilligan, the team's third leading scorer with four goals and four assists, from sweeper to stopper to get his skills more involved in the offense, and moving junior outside defender Jay Dauphinais to sweeper. The key to this experiment will be Dauphinais' ability to handle the added pressure of being the sweeper.

McGowan feels that Dauphinais is one of the better outside defenders in the NECC. If he can play at sweeper allowing Gilligan to move to stopper, and with DiLeo's return at midfield, the Chiefs should be much stronger through the middle of the field. Sophomores Chris

The UMass Lowell Chiefs Hockey team will soon be taking the ice with Coach Crowder at the lead. It remains to be seen if they can recover from the chaos of last season. Photo: Connector archives

Phinney and Adam Winik, and freshman Steve Markey will vie for the two outside spots if Dauphinais proves he can handle the sweeper position.

Another position concerning McGowan heading into the pre-season is in the goal. Junior Brian Lacroix and sophomore Paul Pelletier were thrown into the fire last season after Mike McIntosh broke a finger in the fifth game of the season. Lacroix played in 13 games posting a 2.49 goals against average. He had 88 saves, two shutouts and a 4-5-0 record. Pelletier saw playing time in nine games surrendering 32 goals. One of the two must elevate his game a notch or two for the Chiefs to continue improving.

The conference race should be wide open this season. Defending league and NCAA champion Southern Connecticut (22-0-1/7-0-0) lost a number of key performers from last year's club, but is a perennially strong team. New Hampshire College (15-7-0/5-2-0), the 1989 NCAA champion, the University of Bridgeport (17-4-0/5-2-0), and Keene State College (16-6-2/4-3-0) will try to return to the NECC tournament in November along with the Owls against the challenges of Sacred Heart University (14-6-0/3-4-0), the University of New Haven (5-12-1/2-4-1), Franklin Pierce College (11-7-1/1-5-1), and the Chiefs.

McGowan is confident his team will continue to improve its offensive production, but acknowledges that the defensive end holds the key to the Chiefs fortunes this fall. The Chiefs must play solid defense for 90 minutes every time they take the field if they are to reach their goals this season.

YMCA offers diving instruction

The Greater Lowell Family YMCA is sponsoring a Scuba program in association with Divers World, Inc. of Chelmsford. The program will meet on Thursdays beginning September 12 and running through October 17, 1991. Classes will be held from 6:30 pm - 9:30 pm.

Learn all about the safe and enjoyable underwater world with instructors licensed by the PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATION OF DIVING INSTRUCTORS (PADI). The six classes will include 10 hours of pool time (right here at the YMCA) and 12 hours of classroom work. One open water snorkel dive, 2 shore dives, and 2 boat dives will be arranged and provide certification for those successfully completing the course.

Included in the cost of the courses will be the boat charter fee, the use of supply tank, regulator, B.C., wet suit, hood, mitts, boots, and gear bag. Supply lesson books, information sheets and dive tables will be distributed the first evening.

Students will be asked to supply his/her own mask, fins, snorkel, weight belt with 8 lbs of lead for the second session. This equipment and purchasing discounts arranged through a local dive shop will be discussed in detail at the first meeting.

Registration will run until September 9th. The registration fee is $75.00 CHECKS ONLY PLEASE.
